TICK
TICK
TICK

HUMMMM

Oh, it just drives me up the wall!

Kalle comes in and sits down at the table.

Just a couple more minutes, then it's done.

Not the microwave. The health and safety briefing!

Hi

Hi

Oh I see, that drives you up the wall.

Dear Colleagues, our annual health and safety briefing will be starting in fifteen minutes.

Weren't there some cookies around here?

Health and safety briefings?

Cookies!

Next summer I'll have been working here for twenty years.

Kalle opens a cutlery drawer. And puts his foot on the open drawer. He pushes himself up.

They were in the tin.

No gestures to the cupboard up on the wall of the kitchenette. There's a tin right up on top. Very high and out of reach.

Ah, right, up there...

After twenty years, nobody... needs to tell me... about safety!

SLIP

Do you know?

The makeshift drawer trick doesn't work. Kalle keeps slipping off.

You alright?

It's just not right

that people who've been working here forever get lectured every single year.

Kalle, you really don't need to...
I don't need to go there anymore, not me.

FUMBLE

He fumbles around for the tin.

Totally unfazed by his own bungling efforts, Kalle grabs a crate of water.

It drives me up the wall. Health and safety. Health and safety. Health and safety.

climbs onto the crate.

TILT!
SWAY!
TILT!

SLIP

Health and safety is my middle name!

Mine's Kaya...

OOOPS!

BOING!

I know the scooooooore

THUD!
