

DEAR COLLEAGUES,

Whatever job we do at Power Systems, we all want to get back home as fit and healthy as we started out. That much we owe to ourselves, our colleagues and our families.

So a safe workplace and a healthy workforce take top priority. They're also a matter of great importance to me personally. We've been making good progress in matters of occupational safety in recent months and enjoyed some visible success. And yet, we still have quite a way to go up safety culture ladder. "Safety Bites: Lunchtime" is our first sitcom which is solely dedicated to occupational health and safety. Like any good sitcom, Lunchtime holds up a mirror showing us where we literally trip over our own feet in matters of safety, and why we sometimes stumble despite all the guidelines and sound advice. But, above all, it's intended as a bit of fun. I've been a big fan of Kalle and Mo ever since I watched the first episode, and they're surely the most unusual employees in our team. But for them, as for all of us, the occupational safety and health are at the top of the priority list.

Let's look forward together to the next mess these two get into, and let's smile and learn together. With this in mind – Enjoy and stay safe!

Otto Preiss, Chief Operating Officer

„THERE'S MUCH MORE TO COME“

“The Cookie” is just the first episode in the series. Over the next few months, you can look forward to more installments of fool-hardy fun from the Power Systems Break Room.

SAFETY BITES:

Kalle

- 50 years old

- Kind of careless

- Loveable
big mouth

Mo

- 20 years old

- Neat and tidy

- Good listener

Kalle has been working at the plant for the better part of 20 years. With all that experience he's simply bursting with self-confidence. If only he wasn't quite so careless. Safe to say, Kalle has been involved in some unbelievable accidents as a result. The only thing even less believable are the tall tales he tells to gloss over his accidents.

Now, Mo hasn't been at the plant all that long, but he's very conscientious and always sets a fine example. Although Mo is rather quiet, he still gets along very well with all his colleagues, including Kalle. Mo is a great listener and Kalle likes nothing better than hearing the sound of his own voice. They're a perfect match, well, sort of...

WHAT'S SAFETY BITES: LUNCHTIME ALL ABOUT?

First and foremost, Safety Bites: Lunchtime is a sitcom spotlighting occupational health and safety at Rolls-Royce Power-Systems.

Health and safety is a serious matter, but through this series of humorous videos, we can learn a lot about what happens when you don't take safety seriously.

Meet Kalle, one of the main characters of our sitcom. For him, work safety is hogwash, PPE a necessary evil and recklessness his middle name. And Kalle generally refuses to listen if Mo, our other main character, ever tries to caution him.

Safety Bites: Lunchtime will be entertaining us with a series of tall stories from the Power Systems Break Room that highlight safe and healthy ways of working together. What kind of mess has Kalle gotten himself into this time? And more interestingly: What tall story is he telling to talk his way out of it?

ZERO HARM

WATCH THE FIRST EPISODE NOW:

WWW.ROLLS-ROYCE.COM/LUNCHTIME

Up first is an episode entitled "The Cookie". It's available now at www.rolls-royce.com/lunchtime Let's see if Kalle, cookies and safety briefings make for a good combination.